AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.
There are a number of persons out of employment in every county—yet energetic men willing to work, and to do so for $500 a month clear, working for us in a pleasant and permanent business. The money our agents make varies, some make as high as $500 a month while others, as low as $100, all depending upon the energy of the agent. We have an article of great merit. It should be sold to every householder, and pays over 100 per cent. profit. Each sale is from $2.50 to $10.00. One agent in Pennsylvania sold 12 in two days, and cleared $24.00. An agent in New York made $85.00 in one day. Any man with energy enough to work a full day, and will do this during the year can make from $2,000 to $6,000 a year. We only want one man in each county, and his job will give the exclusive sale as long as he continues to work faithfully for us. There is no competition, and nothing but our money returns all goods sold to us, and have money returned to them if they fail to clear at least $700 in that time. There are many persons leaving money to invest, who could not give the business personal attention—such as employ sub-agents without leaving home—making a large amount yearly out of a very small investment. We are not paying salaries, but want men willing to work and obtain as they pay the profits of their energy. Men not willing to work on our terms will not work for us. Those meaning business will receive our large descriptive circular, and extraordinary offer by enclosing a three-cent stamp, with their address. The first to comply with our terms will secure the county or counties they may wish to work. Address

A BIG GAME OF POKER.
A Foreign Minister Who Lost $300,000 in a New York Millionaire's House.

From the Detroit Free Press.
A heavy game of poker was played not very long since, as I am credibly informed, in the mansion of a New York millionaire. The millionaire is also a banker, whose name is pretty well known from the Hudson to San Francisco. I am not at liberty to put it in print and for this very good reason I refrain from so doing. He has long had the reputation of one of the boldest poker players in New York and some of the heaviest games on record have been played in his house, where he dispenses a princely hospitality. In the particular game in question, if my information is correct, a foreign minister, who must also be a millionaire, though I may say that he is a social celebrity in Washington and not unknown in other places, found himself mulcted out of $300,000.

He was well acquainted with the banker and had joined poker parties at his house several times before. On the occasion in question the party consisted of five, all with millions to draw upon and courage to back a strong hand for all it was worth. They had played for some time before anything unusual happened. The hands were ordinary and there was nothing exciting in the game. Along toward midnight, however, the cards took a sort of new departure. The first deal was a bad one for the banker, nine, ten and jack hearts. He discarded a spade, took one card and drew the queen of hearts. So strong a straight flush as that might not come out twice in ten thousand times. He was elated, but his face gave no sign.

The minister called for two cards. He already held three kings, and in the draw he got a fourth. The prospect for a contest was good—four kings against a straight flush, and the odds of 1 to 1. The betting began low, but soon got up to fifty, and the other players, whose hands were not of much account, then dropped out. The banker raised the figure to $100. The minister put up $100 and said, "I raise you $500." The banker saw the $500 and raised it $1,000. The war then began in earnest. The bets ran up to $5,000, $10,000, $20,000. The men who had dropped out held their breath. The two who stood in had their blood up and each felt that his hand was good enough for one figure. In a few minutes the pot represented $500,000. At that point the banker showed a disposition to halt, but the minister was not satisfied. He raised another $20,000 and the banker saw it and went $10,000 better. The minister followed with $25,000. "All right," said the banker, "I see your $25,000 and call you down. That was the end of it. When the minister laid down his four kings, the banker put his straight flush beside them without a word. The minister seemed a little surprised, but merely said, "Very good; the money is mine." He had lost $300,000. It did not sour him a bit. The game was not resumed, but he talked as pleasantly as if he had won a fortune instead of losing one. The banker seemed embarrassed and his friends who had dropped out of the game were uncomfortable. He decided on the spot that it would not do to have any more poker playing in his house. It might be said that he drew his friends there to see him. He still plays a little game now and then, but only at the club.

THE MATTER WITH THE TELEPHONE.
"I don't know what I shall do with that telephone of mine," observed a citizen as he entered the headquarters of the company yesterday and sat down in a disappointed way.

"Out of order is it?"
"Sometimes it vibrates, and sometimes it vibrates all right. If I go to speak mid der coal man, or der city hall, or der butcher, it vibrates all right, and I can hear every word. If somebody vibrates to order my beer, I get der name stuck as plain as daylight."
"And when does it fail?"
"Vell, shust like two hours ago. A saloon man he owes me $18, and I rings him up and calls out, 'Hello! Hello! I likes dot monish to-day!' Den he vrant to know who I am; and he says he can't catch der name. I tell him oufer and oufer, and by and by he calls out dot he don't deal in water-melons, and dot he goes in to pave Garret street, and dot he is sorry he can't sign my bettison to der council. Den I haf to go all oufer again, and he tells me to stand back, and to come closer, and to speak louder, and at last he gets mad, and tells me dot if I call him a dandy again he'll proke my head. It's no use—I can't make some of my customers hear me. If somethings don't all my telephone, it may be ash my voice is giving out. I wish you would examine me and see if I haf petter tell my son Shon dot der talking while I keep der books."—Detroit Free Press.

A Word to the Girls.
Don't rush into matrimony, my dear young ladies; enjoy your youth while you can. Don't allow any idea of marriage to get into your head. Don't even run the risk of it by permitting any young man to get so far as the proposing point. Fight him off and make him wait or go away to somebody who is ready. Don't live under the impression that you must accept the first love-sick youth who proposes. Be patient, deliberate and sagacious. There is a world of happiness for you between sixteen and twenty-five. The world would be a dreary old waste if it were not for the sweet faces of young girls with their radiant sayings and smiling smiles. Your father has bought you a piano, and you have learned how to play after many long and wearisome lessons. Don't spoil all by getting married for after that you won't have much use for your piano. After you have reached twenty-five it will be well to consider the matrimonial problem with some seriousness. And even then, if you have a good home, you need be in no hurry to solve it.
